An aerial, top-down view of a rooftop terrace. The terrace is enclosed by a glass railing and has a grey tiled floor. In the center, a group of people are gathered around a small table with drinks. The terrace is surrounded by a city street with cars and buildings. The text "360° PANORAMIC VIEW" is overlaid in the center. At the bottom of the image, there are two large air conditioning units and a solar panel array.

360° PANORAMIC VIEW

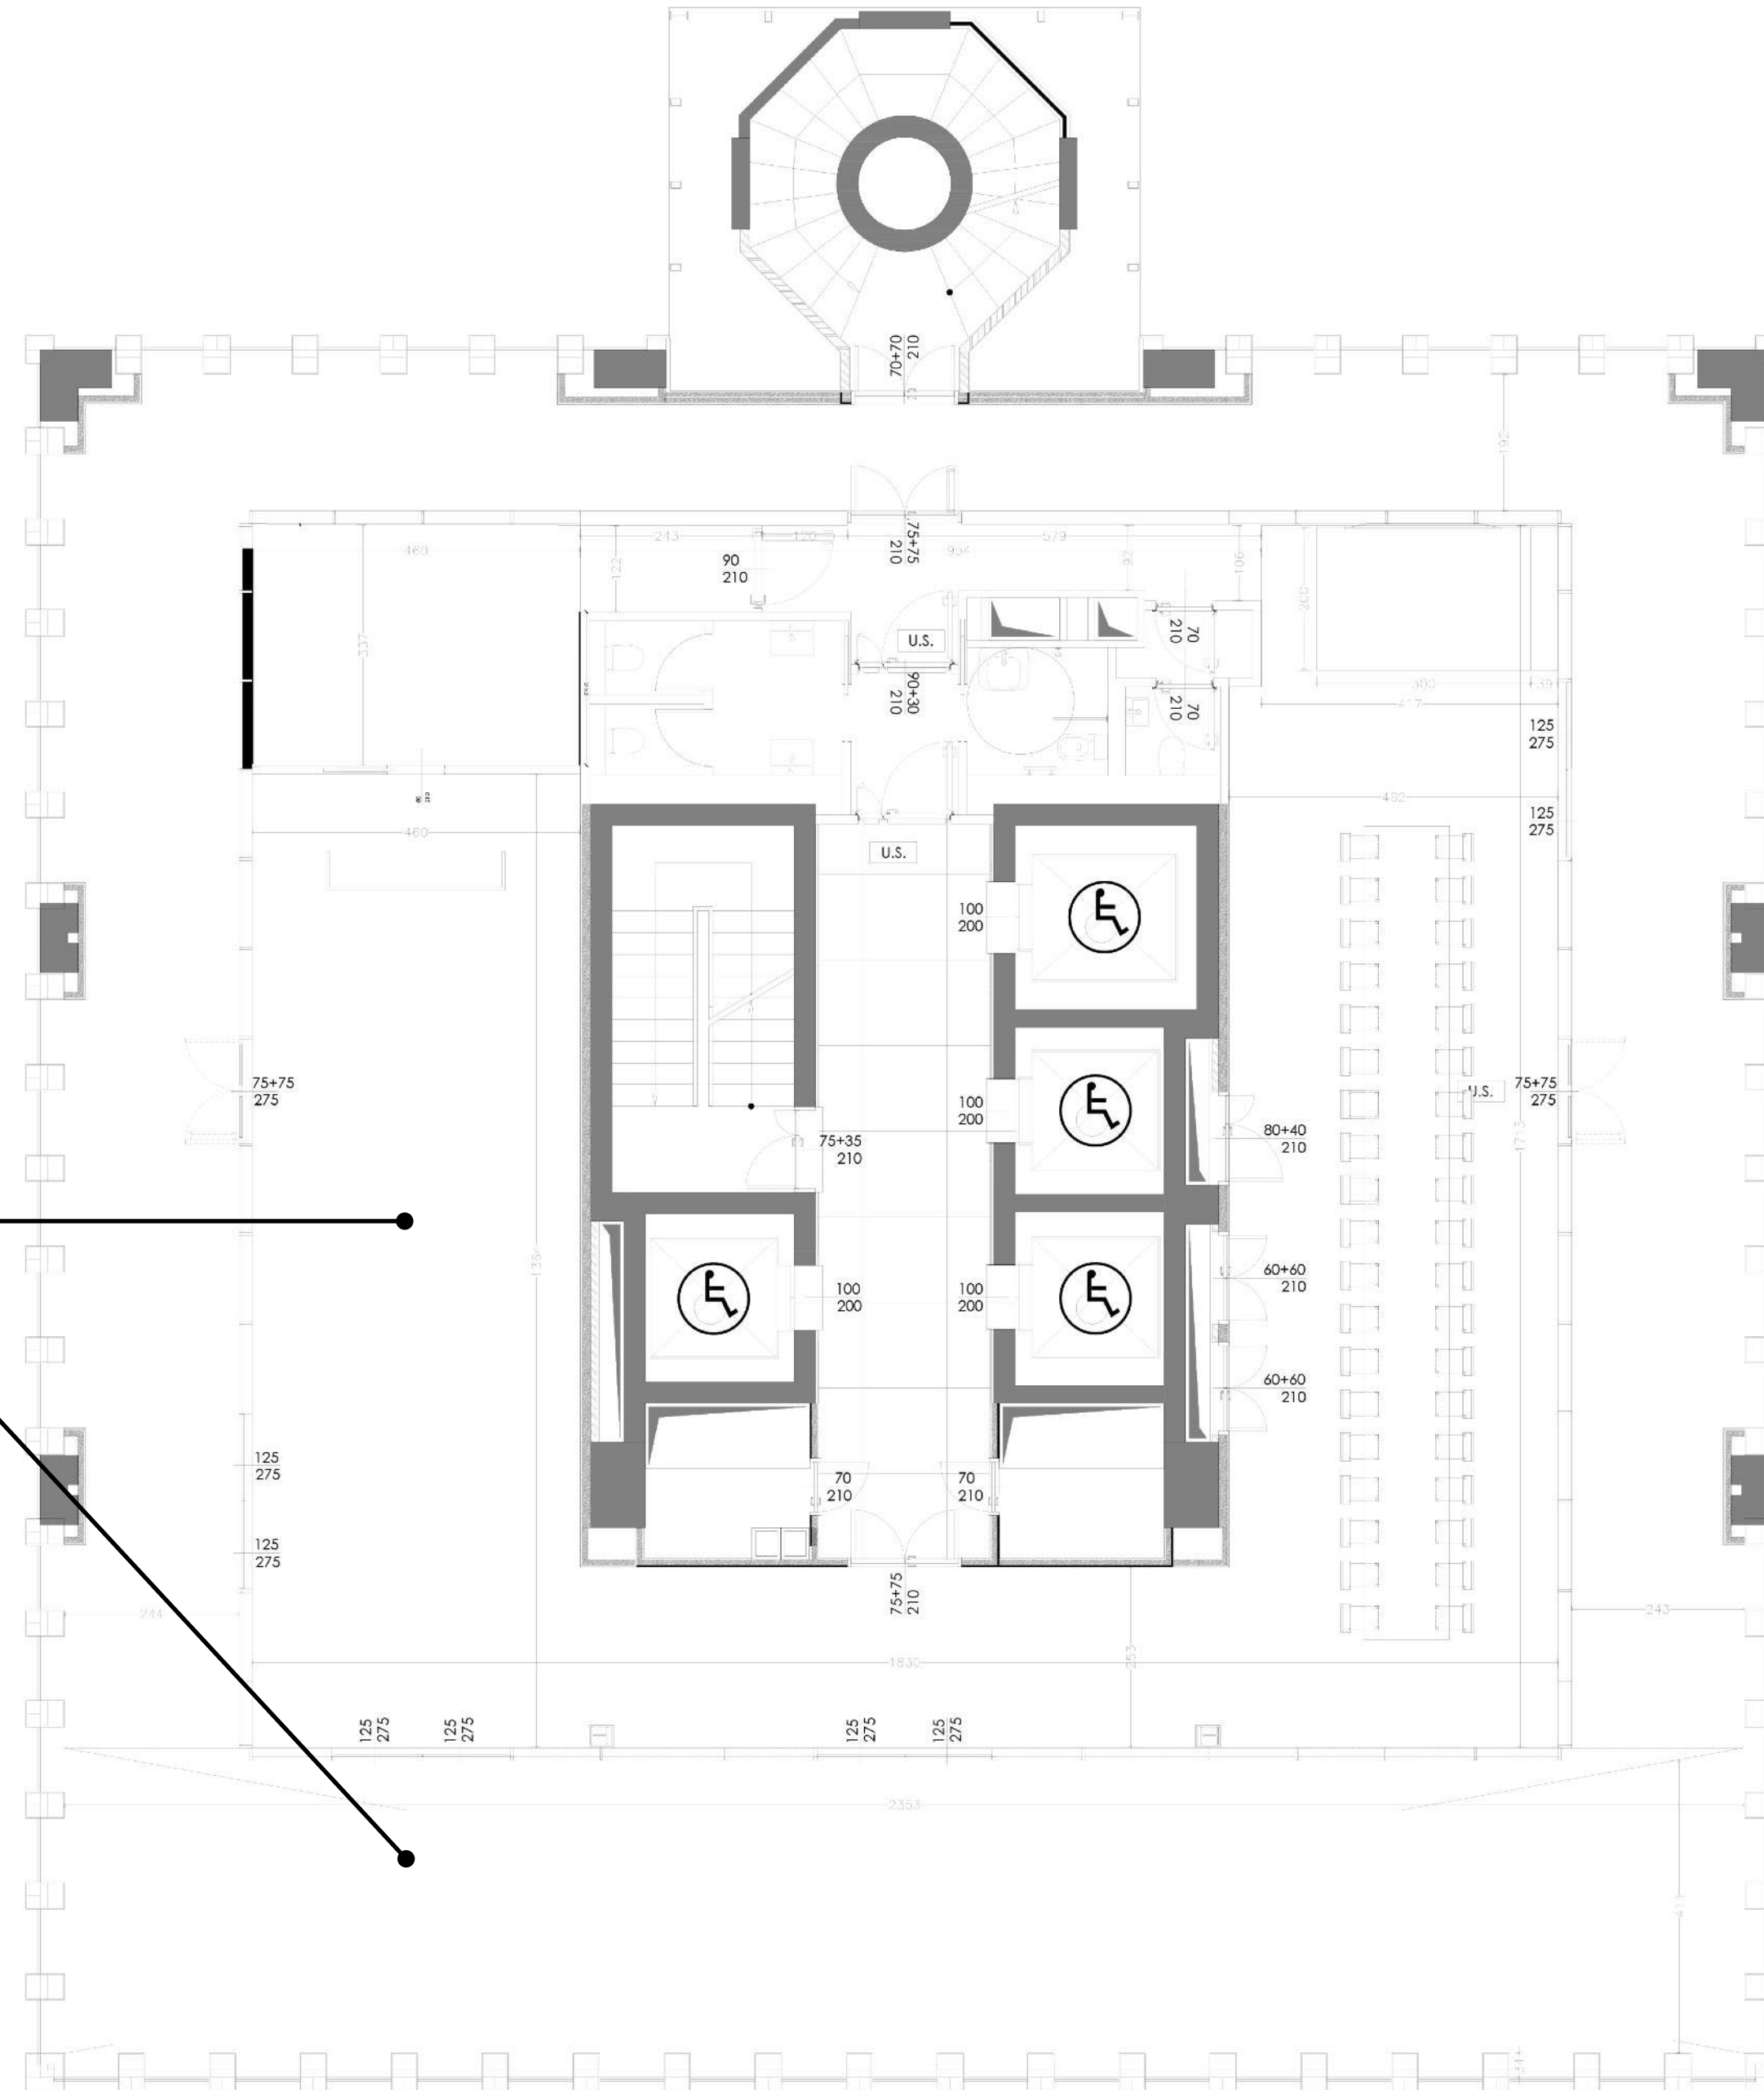

A 3D architectural rendering of a building's floor plates, viewed from an isometric perspective. The top-most floor plate is clearly detailed, showing a central rectangular core with internal rooms and corridors, surrounded by a perimeter of smaller spaces. Below this, a series of floor plates are stacked, each offset from the one above it, creating a stepped, zig-zag pattern. The offset pattern is consistent across all the lower floors, suggesting a repetitive structural or spatial design. The rendering uses a grayscale color scheme with varying shades of gray to differentiate the different levels and components of the building.
